

My name is Justin Banks and I have worked at Eugene Physical Therapy for 2.5 years of my 12 years of overall experience. EPT never compares themselves to other clinics and neither will I because that would be limiting. Everyone at EPT holds themselves to the EPT standard, which is incredibly high. There are no weak links in the chain. Everybody excels at what they do and will help each other if needed in order to deliver the highest quality of patient care experience possible. The working environment at EPT is professional, yet fun, productive, yet comfortable, nurturing, yet assertive and anyone can fit in if they are committed to doing what is expected.

From a clinician standpoint, this is an amazing place to work because of the one on one patient care experience and the eclectic approach that the therapists are encouraged to take with our patients. Owners, Jeff and Christy, are committed to the growth of their therapists through financial support as well as scheduled mentoring and always being available to discuss cases or any other aspect of the work day. Therapists at EPT have multiple different certifications and experiences with different approaches to treating musculoskeletal ailments. Whatever the therapist preference and personal style, it will be fostered, developed and expanded upon whether that therapist is a new grad or has been in the field for 25 years.

Working at Eugene Physical Therapy has shown me what physical therapy can and should be. I will be eternally grateful for the time I have spent here and how they have helped me grow professionally and personally.
